All relatives, friends and their familles THE SCHEDULE OF FOOT-BALL GAMES

Interesting Contests that Are to Take Place in Richmond.

While the base-ball teams have the eye of the adherents of athletic sport sverywhere, and everybody is thinking of bits and runs and batting averages of hits and runs and batting averages and the pennant race, the upholders of the athlete honor of the colleges and universities on the gridiron are already organizing and forming their plans of battle for the fall campaign. The foot-ball season may be said to begin September 1st, and it always closes about December 1st, the climax of the season being reached on Thanksgiving Day. Long before that, however, and in many cases before summer has begun to wane, the candidates for position on the teams are in training and preparing for the stubborn struggles of brain, speed and brawn that mark this stirring sport. The schedules of the larger colleges and universities are now being made up, and that of the University of Virginia, perhaps the strongest of Southern teams, was announced yesterday.

In the Virginia schedule Richmond adherents of the sport, and especially the supporters of the Orange and Blue, will note with pleasure that the great crucial game of the season in the South—that between Virginia and Carolina—is to be played in this city on Thanksgiving Day. Last year the two well-balanced rivals for the Southern championship struggled to an indecisive result after one of the most brilliant and stirring exhibitions ever seen here. All of Virginia's team of last year, with one or two exceptions, will be back this season, and several last November that they would be on the Virginia eleven this season. Carolina may be depended on to put a plucky eleven in the field and to put up a game struggle, win or lose.

Another of Virginia's best games is to be played in this city—that with the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, on October 24th. The V. P. I. has been for several sections one of the strongest, if not the strongest, eleven in the South, and are certainly the University's greatest rivals for the honors of premiership. The Varsity men have had a strenuous struggle to defeat the doughty men from Blacksburg. The V. P. I. boys have never played the University in this city, and their only game here was with the Univers

Virginia teams will rival in interest the innual struggle between Virginia and city. This is a more central point, and Richmond will patronize a fine foot-ball game liberally, as shown last year in the Virginia-Carolina game. The military schools have never played their annual match here, chiefly because there has been no effort to get them here. The University of Virginia has an open date on its schedule, November 7th, and if Richmond makes a good, hard try, she may get the game to be scheduled for that date. Virginia and Pennsylvania of Princeton would prove a great card here. Let the athletic interests of the city get together and try for more games.

A family excursion will be given by the Druids of Richmond to West Point on next Monday. A fine time is guaranteed to all who may go, and the committee invites all to go.

pushed a plan of no inconsiderable proportion, which will result, if it is carried through, as there seems to be no reason to doubt, in placing the Old Dominion at the head of that section of the agricultural display devoted to the weed. This plan, in brief, comprises a complete and thorough exposition of the handling of tebacco, from the plant actually in the soil to the manufactured product issuing from the machine. It will represent an outlay of from $25,000 to $50,000, a portion of which expense will be borne by the State and by the exposition.

DESIGN JUST PROPOSED.

It will be recalled that at a meeting held in this city a few weeks ago representatives from nearly twenty of the markets in the State discussed the advisability of having an exhibit, and finally appointed a permanent committee, with Mr. W. W. Morton, of this city, as its chairman. They nominated a man to take charge of the tobacco interests at St. Louis, and the name of this gentleman is now before the Virginia commissioners. Meanwhile, however, the committee has been pushing its work, and there has just been submitted certain definite designs for the proposed exhibit. Since the meeting at which the nomination was made, and as a result of the presentation of the designs, the proposition has grown vastly in proportion. It is now of very striking interest to all tobacco men and to the business portion of the community at large.

Speaking of the matter yesterday, Mr. Morton stated that it had been suggested, and the suggestion will be carried out, that Virginia, the pioneer State in the tobacco industry, take the lead at St. Louis. The fame of the Old Dominion as a tobacco-raising State extends throughout the world, and when foreigners seek American tobacco they turn to Virginia-for her bright and dark leaf. The raising of tobacco began here in the olden time, when the land was young, and from that day to this the fragrant weed has been the chief staple product of the State. What is now North and South Carolina bright tobacco, and while the West as Virginia tobacco, and while the We will exploit the manufacture of the we-Virginia will step in to claim the cred

FROM FIELD TO FACTORY.

In pursuance of this idea there has been submitted a definite and beautiful design of the character as suggested above. There will be hothouses in St. Louis, and in them, spreading their wide leaves for the benefit of the visitors, will be growing tobacco plants. Starting at this point the exhibit will carry the spectator through the various evolutions of the weed, leading up to the moment when it comes forth ready for the market. There will be the huge, round hogsheads of tobacco, the stuff as it appears in the market, in the stemmery, in the rehandling plant, and finally tween $25,000 and $50,000, including transportation charge, which will be borne by the State, and the cost of erecting devices at St. Louis, which will be defrayed by the Exposition Company. The chief loss to tobacco men would be in the stuft they would send out to make up the exhibit. Of course, after it stood the wear and tear of the exposition the tobacco could be used no more.

IS VERY HOPEFUL.

Mr. Morton is very hopeful of the pres-

Mr. Morton is very hopeful of the prospects for the exhibit. He is confident that it will be made, and he feels with many others that the advertisement will prove of vast benefit to Virginia. Once aroused to a realization of the importance of the matter, it is believed that the tobaccomen will respond liberally to the call.

misunderstandings at the bar of justice, before Justice John, in the Police Court.

The bakery was located at No. 1891 East Franklin Street, and was supposed to belong to one S. Skohnik, who was only lately discharged from the Cirv Hospital, where he spent a couple of weeks, suffering from the effects of a blow administered by his diminutive business partner, Grazek Pincus. The assets proved to be one blind horse, a white-washed wagon, sixty loaves of stale bread, and an antiquated sewing machine. Sheriff Epps realized $45 for the effects, and it is understood the hread was purchased by a paving contract company, and will be used on one of the streets of the city in lieu of granite spalls.

Pincus and Skohnik, both foreigners, formed a partnership a month ago or more, but they could not agree, and almost daily the men would fight. Finally Pincus was pushed out in the cold, and returned one morning to smash Skolnik with a scale weight. At the time it was reported Skolnik had been beaten by a bold burgiar and robbed of $23.

The receiver was appointed by Judge Ingram, of the Law and Equity Court, several days ago upon the application of Pincus. The effects were sold by Sheriff Epps, the receiver, yesterday, and the money placed to the credit of the court.
